

COVID-19 Impacts on Hampton Roads

Regional Travel Levels and the COVID-19 Pandemic

HRTPO staff has been keeping track of regional travel levels during the Covid-19 pandemic. Turn on the notes feature in your PDF viewer for this presentation and check out the most recent analysis of regional travel levels throughout the Covid-19 pandemic.

Are You Flood Fluent?

New Flood Risk Calculator Takes Guesswork Out of Flood Insurance Costs for Hampton Roads Residents

If questions about flood insurance costs are keeping you from signing up, a new online tool can help you do the math. Hampton Roads planners and emergency managers, working with the Hampton Roads Planning District Commission (HRPDC), have developed a free Flood Risk Calculator that takes the guesswork out of insuring your home against flooding.

What you need to know:

Why do I need to identify the location of my belongings?

With the exception of single family residences, rates vary depending on where your belongings are stored. For example, rates are substantially lower when insuring contents kept on the second floor of a structure.

New Groundwater Education Tools

Groundwater is an important resource, providing 22% of public drinking water in the Hampton Roads Region. The HRPDC has recently released two different educational tools that depict active groundwater permits and historic groundwater levels within the Eastern Virginia Groundwater Management Area (EVGWMA).

Get Out and Explore Hampton Roads

Getting Outdoors in Hampton Roads

Like many of you, the PDC and TPO staff have been staying at home, working, educating, parenting, relaxing, and yearning to get outside when the weather turns in our favor. Some families have taken the opportunity to begin exploring parts of Hampton Roads in new ways. People in our region are fortunate to have the ability to travel about 40 miles in any direction and discover new places, explore different environments, and hopefully see some wildlife.
